Corporate Training in Organizational and Political Savvy

Consultant Bio

For over two decades in the training and development industry, Jeff Levy-Lyons has been known for his passion for helping people learn, grow, and work together more productively and happily. The focus of Jeff's work is around communication skills and how intentional, skilled communication is a critical ingredient to business and life success. In addition to leading workshops as a senior trainer/facilitator, Jeff conducts private coaching sessions with teams and executives. He also contributes to multiple training companies as a course designer.

Jeff has worked with clients across a wide variety of industries, including high tech, financial services, manufacturing, healthcare, and retail sales. He has worked with every level within organizations, from executives to frontline personnel.

Jeff believes that much of the wisdom in any learning environment resides with the learner. He sees himself as a facilitator of learning, helping people raise their self-awareness while building new interpersonal "muscles" that can overcome unhealthy patterns of behavior.

Jeff's areas of expertise include management/coaching skills, selling skills, meeting facilitation skills, presentation skills, and social styles.

Clients Jeff has worked with include Morgan Stanley, MetLife, WellPoint, Goodyear, Genentech, and Takeda Pharmaceutical. He also works with non-profits and faith-based organizations.

Jeff's earlier life was in the performing arts, including off-Broadway theatre, television, and recording. He brings a sense of performance, humor, and self-discovery to every training and coaching engagement. Whether in a classroom, a private coaching, or in front of a large crowd, Jeff shows up ready to create a relaxed, respectful, and fun environment that nurtures learning.

Jeff lives in New York City with his wife Ana, their twins Miriam and Micah, and their dog, Yofi ■
